Approved Claims & Messaging Guide

A quick check before every creator post. When in doubt, ask before you publish — not after.

Say what is true.

Operational messaging guidance for creators. This is not legal advice, and it does not replace the Creator Program Terms.

01

The standard

Trust is built one accurate post at a time. Use only claims supported by your actual experience and current product information. Feature availability can change; when you are unsure, ask the UNIUI team before publishing.

APPROVEDWhen accurate

“UniUI helps me study smarter.” · “UniUI can answer academic questions with sources.” · “I use UNIUI for my coursework.” · “UniUI is built for Nigerian students.”

CHECK FIRSTOnly if verified

“It's free to try” — only if the current offer is confirmed. · A feature being live, available to all users, or working in a specific way. · A result, saving or outcome that happened to you personally.

AVOIDNo guaranteed outcomes

Do not say UNIUI guarantees better grades, passes or academic success.

AVOIDNo assignment replacement

Do not say UNIUI does assignments for students, or should be submitted as their work.

AVOIDNo perfection claims

Do not say UNIUI is 100% accurate or never makes mistakes.

AVOIDNo unsupported comparisons

Do not make claims about competitors, or imply university endorsement without approval.

WHY THE CAP ON CLAIMS MATTERS TO YOU

Claims are reviewed when a complaint is made, not before a post goes up. A post promising grades exposes UNIUI to a consumer-protection claim, and your commission on every active creator is paused while it is investigated. Accurate posting protects your earnings as well as the brand.

02

Disclosure

Make your creator relationship visible. Concealed advertising is the fastest way to lose both your audience's trust and your standing in the program.

EVERY POSTRequired disclosure

Every post must include “I’m a UNIUI creator” or #UniUICreator. Place it where a viewer can notice it; do not hide it among unrelated tags.

CAMPAIGNTag the brand

Tag @UniUI where the platform supports it and the campaign asks for a tag. Use #UniUICreator where appropriate.

03

Safer alternatives

Almost every risky claim has an honest version that performs just as well. The honest one is more persuasive, because your audience can tell the difference.

ACCURACYInstead of “It never gets anything wrong”

Try: “I checked this answer against the source it showed. Here is what I found.”

OUTCOMESInstead of “It will get you an A”

Try: “I used it to review this topic. I still checked my notes and course guidance.”

INTEGRITYInstead of “It does my assignment”

Try: “I used it to understand a concept; the submitted work and final answer are mine.”

AVAILABILITYInstead of “This feature is available to everyone”

Try: “This is what I could access in my account today.”

SPEEDInstead of “It learns any course instantly”

Try: “I uploaded my lecture notes and asked about a topic from that class.”

COMPARISONInstead of “It’s better than [competitor]”

Try: describe what it did for you, and let the viewer compare.

Quick review

A 30-second pre-post check. Run it every time.

SIX CHECKS BEFORE PUBLISHING

- ☐ I tried it — I am describing a real experience, not a copied or imagined testimonial.
- ☐ I checked it — any source, answer or feature claim matches what I actually saw.

- ☐ I disclosed — “I’m a UNIUI creator” or #UniUICreator appears clearly.
- ☐ I protected privacy — no personal data, private student details or confidential assessment content is visible.
- ☐ I stayed in bounds — no guaranteed grades, perfect accuracy, assignment replacement or competitor claims.
- ☐ I asked when unsure — the UNIUI team has reviewed uncertain release details or wording.

IF YOU ARE UNSURE, DO NOT GUESS

Ask in the creator group before the post goes live. A question costs you an hour. A retracted post costs you the commission on that campaign.

05

Phrases to retire

These read as claims a regulator or an angry comment would quote. Replace them with the approved wording earlier in this guide.

DO NOT SAY	SAY INSTEAD
“UniUI guarantees an A”	“I use it to review topics faster, then I check my course materials.”
“It does your assignment”	“It helps me understand concepts; my submitted work is mine.”
“It never gets anything wrong”	“I check the answer against the source it shows.”
“It’s free”	“This is what I could access in my account today.”
“UniUI is endorsed by [school]”	“It’s built for Nigerian university students.”
“Better than [competitor]”	Describe what it did for you and let the viewer compare.
“Everyone in my course uses it”	“Several people in my class have tried it.”
“It learns any course instantly”	“I uploaded my notes and asked about a topic from that class.”

06

Organic versus paid posts

Once a campaign is live, some creators will be offered paid placement. The disclosure rules do not change.

PAIDIt must still be disclosed

A paid creator post needs the same “I’m a UNIUI creator” or #UniUICreator disclosure, plus whatever the platform requires for advertising.

PAIDThe claims rules are identical

Being paid makes a false claim more dangerous, not less. The Approved Claims guide applies without exception.

PAIDSeparate the two relationships

If a post is both a creator post and a paid placement, say so plainly rather than blurring them.
